Construction Law Update

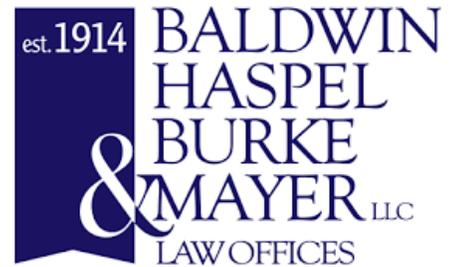

PROGRAM DESCRIPTION

Join us for this first session in our new professional development speaker series on construction law updates, which will be presented twice annually by local experts. Topics will include recent Louisiana state and federal court decisions, legislative developments, tax issues concerning construction-related matters, and more.

The insights and discussions provided regarding recent trends in construction law and construction litigation will be beneficial for construction managers, contractors, engineers, architects, and other professionals in the construction industry, especially in keeping up with the latest legal developments.

FEATURED SPEAKERS

John A. Stewart, Jr is a New Orleans native and De La Salle High School graduate. He attended Loyola University College of Law where he received his Juris Doctor in 1977. John later received a Master of Laws in Energy and Environment from Tulane University School of Law. He is admitted to practice before all Louisiana courts, Texas and Colorado state courts. John has practiced law for more than 30 years, with experience including the trial of environmental, toxic tort, insurance and construction claims, along with the representation of engineers, architects, and other professionals in the defense of malpractice claims. Prior to his practice, John was the manager of the New Orleans District of the Associated General Contractors (AGC) of Louisiana.

Andrew T. Sullivan is a native of Oak Grove, Louisiana who received his bachelor's degree in Accounting from Louisiana Tech University after which he moved to New Orleans to attend Loyola University College of law. He enhanced his tax and business law knowledge by obtaining a Master of Laws in taxation from New York University. Andrew's practice focuses primarily on mergers and acquisitions, business planning and other transactional matters, with an emphasis on federal and state taxation. He helps clients achieve their business and estate planning goals in a tax-efficient manner.
